Recovering Addicts Are Choosing Life:

Pope Benedict XVI told a group of young Australians recovering from drug and alcohol abuse that he considers them "ambassadors of hope." Those who have struggled to overcome addiction and get their lives back on a positive track are the best ones to help others who are lost and suffering, the pope said on 18th July while travelling in Australia for World Youth Day. During a visit by the pope to a rehabilitation community and support program run by the Archdiocese of Sydney's social service agency, a young man and a young woman publicly shared their stories with the pope, struggling with emotion to speak of their difficult pasts and their joy in finding the program that helps disadvantaged youths, including the homeless and refugees as well as those trying to overcome substance abuse. The pope said the participants, like the people following Moses, had been given the stark choice of choosing life or death. "They had to turn away from other gods and worship the true God" (America' magazine (4th August, 2008))

The Deep End – Faiths Strength:

I've just finished reading The God Delusion by Richard Dawkins with my faith intact despite running the gauntlet of rational, and at times seemingly irrational, assault. I think that his approach to eradicating religion is rather like fighting fire with wind. It may blow it out, but then again it may just fan the flames.

Anyway, today's Second Reading (Rom: 8:35, 37-39) reminds us of a very important fact with regard to faith. It's not primarily a matter of our relationship with God, but of God's relationship with us. That's its strength. Paul puts it boldly as he asks: Will hardship, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword separate us from Christ? To which he gives a resounding No! Neither will death, nor life, nor angels, nor rulers, nor things present, nor things to come (including science and Dawkins book?) nothing, simply nothing, can separate us from the love of God. In other words nothing can touch Gods love for us. That's what we believe, wonderfully unscientific though it may be.

And the faith we have or, more accurately, that has us is not for hoarding but for sharing. It's a gift to improve the quality of human life by bringing out all that is good within and around us. That's the point of today's Gospel reading (Matthew 14:13-21) too. The crowds are hungry, in a barren place. Jesus tells his followers those with faith in him to feed the crowds. Once the faith is present, the miracle happens.

Questions people ask:

Q. Could heaven be boring? Eternal life, going on and on with no end doesn't appeal to me at all. A. Try thinking of eternity not in terms of time but as a total experience of love, joy, celebration etc. We get little glimpses of the eternal in moments of beauty when we would like the clock to stop right there. Jesus promised: "I will see you again and your hearts will rejoice, and no one will take your joy from you" (John 16:22). St. Paul wrote that no eye has seen, no ear has heard and no imagination has managed to visualise all that God has prepared for those who love him. That doesn't sound like the recipe for boredom!
