Hosting a 'Station Mass' is a long tradition in the life of our parish communities in the Catholic Church. It reflects our openness to God and our hospitality to our neighbour. Hospitality should be kept as simple as possible. It is important that our priorities have the right focus. Mass in our homes is a blessing to the family and to the local area. It would be a blessing if one family in each townland were willing to host a 'Station'.

I've spoken with individuals who consider themselves estranged from the Church. Sometimes their situation has come about as the result of hurt suffered at a sensitive time in their lives, or a brush with someone seen as representative of the Church, or more often than not a case of disillusionment or a sense of not fitting in. It's hard to convince such a person that it is infinitely better to be part of the Church, with all its imperfections, than to cut oneself off from it. How can we expect to get something out if we put nothing in; what good are our talents if we keep them to ourselves, hoarded away like money in a cash tin? A Church community thrives when those within it pool together for the greater good.

Everyone has something to offer God, and something to share for God's sake. By coming together to worship Him, we can stumble upon hidden gifts and at the same time become healed of the hurt and division which otherwise would keep us apart.

There will be no fanfare for an estranged soul coming back into the fold (at least none we can hear) nor will it be roses all the way, but there is for them what there is for us, namely, real communion and confirming of our identity as children of God.

Papal Visit to a Land of Nonbelievers – Czech Prior Reflects on Benedict XVI's Next Trip: KOENIGSTEIN, Germany, 15th September, 2009 (zenit.org)

Though Benedict XVI's next apostolic visit will bring him to one of the most atheistic nations in Europe, many Czechs who describe themselves as nonbelievers still love the Infant Jesus of Prague, whom the Pope will visit on his first day in the Republic.

Prior Petr Sleich of the Carmelite monastery of the Holy Infant of Prague noted his countrymen's affection for the Infant Jesus when he spoke last week with Aid to the Church in Need about the Holy Father's trip to the Czech Republic this month.

"Many people are uncertain when it comes to God, but I wouldn't say they have no faith," he said, explaining that the aim of the papal visit is to focus people's hearts and minds on Christ. "I am certain that many [Czechs] will yet become [the Infant Jesus'] friends!"

According to Prior Sleich, the fact that the first stop on the Pontiff's program is the shrine of Our Lady of Victories, where the image of the Holy Infant Jesus has been venerated since the 17th century, is "the most powerful expression of this intention."

Benedict XVI will be in the Czech Republic from 26th to 28th September.

During his visit, the Pope will solemnly crown the image of the Infant Jesus, which, affirmed the 41 year old Carmelite prior, is the highest honor Western Christianity can accord such an image.

Prior Sleich said the Infant Jesus is a symbol that everyone can understand, and one that often leads to a real encounter with Christ.

"When people come here to our church and see God as a Child, they have no fear of him" the Carmelite observed. "On the contrary, he is a child who needs our love, our hearts, our hands, our help."

Nevertheless, Prior Sleich continued, the Prague image also portrays Christ as a king. The orb held in his left hand symbolizes the entire universe, which stands beneath the symbol of the cross and rests in the hand of the Child Jesus.

"I sometimes say, half jokingly, that the left hand of the Child Jesus is enough to sustain the entire universe," Prior Sleich recounted. "But of course it is no joke, but the truth. Meanwhile, with his right hand, the Divine Child blesses mankind." This is a symbol, he added, that is easily intelligible to people without a great deal of reflection, and "the most effective symbols are precisely those that do not require us to think long and hard about them."

Though the prior admitted that the papal visit comes at a time when spirituality is weak in the Czech Republic -- only about 30% of Czechs claim any religious belief -- he is hopeful about the future.

He himself was only baptized at age 20 after having found his way to faith through friends, while a student of mathematics. Today almost his entire family is Catholic.

"Things can change very quickly," the priest affirmed, "as we all saw 20 years ago with our own eyes, when the Iron Curtain fell."

Seeing your life through the lens of the gospels – Mark 9:30-39:

- Jesus uses the time they are travelling along the road to teach his disciples what it means to be one of his followers. Think of the wisdom you have acquired about life, about faith, about what it means to be a Christian. Who have been your teachers? Remember them and give thanks for them.
- 2. One of the lessons Jesus gives them is that there is a dying to be endured as we move to a fuller life. That was the road he would travel. It is also our journey, not only at the end of this earthly life, but also in small ways through life. When have you found that by dying in some way you came to a fuller life?
- 3. Achievement, affirmation, recognition and status are attractive and enjoyable when they come our way. Yet we can be in trouble if, like the disciples, we become caught up in pursuit of them. Jesus tells them that true greatness lies in service of others. What has helped you to appreciate the value of loving service of others? When have you experienced the service of others to you?

Questions people ask:

Q. What are the sacraments of Initiation?

A. Most religions have ceremonies of Initiation to mark stages of belonging to the group. We recognise Baptism, Confirmation and Eucharist as three stages of union with Jesus and the fullness of Christian life. Pope John Paul II wrote that the participation of people in the mission of Christ finds its source in Baptism, its further development in Confirmation and its realisation and dynamic sustenance in the holy Eucharist. Fr Silvester O'Flynn OFM Cap (silvesteroflynn@gmail.com)

The Deep End – Hobson's Choice?:

Today's Gospel reading (Mark 9:30-37) makes you wonder what on earth possessed Jesus to choose the ones he did to become his disciples. He's teaching them vitally important matters but not only do they not understand what he's saying, they're afraid even to ask him what he means. Why? Could they fear that he may tire of them and look for others more intelligent to replace them as his disciples?

Though slow on the uptake, they're quick on the draw. Self-seeking calculation has them bickering about which of them is top dog. Not only are they a bit dense they're also small-time glory seekers. Could any group of people be less likely candidates to become Jesus' disciples!

Yet, he chose them knowing their calibre, and knowing what he was doing. Amazing! Even more amazing is the change in them after Jesus' death and resurrection, a change that sees them proclaiming a most profound message and establishing a faith-community that has spread throughout the world down to this present day. It was also a change that produced in them total commitment to God even to the point of death.

Bringing it closer to home is it not equally amazing the type of people God still calls today to do his work? I don't mean priests and religious primarily but parents. What more precious task could be entrusted to a human being than to bring another into this world and introduce them to God?

We too can be dense and self-seeking, yet God has chosen us. How has the gift of life changed us?
